LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

A PAINFUL AND MELANCHOLY OCCURRE sterday afternoon, about five o'clock, two ons of Mr. Charles W. Stewart, called at the store of Dr. Gardner, Capitol Hill, and in-ed for their father, who had left home early in the forenoon. The doctor informed them he had seen him about three o'clock, and had sold him one and a half ounce of laudanum. The little boys commenced crying, and said their father had threatened to kill himself. Immediate search was instituted by Dr. Gardner, and Messrs. Nokes, (Scient). Griffith, and Captain Dunnington, of the Capitol Ponce. Knowing that he was in the habit of founging in the Speaker's room of the House of Representatives, they immediately repaired hither; ng the door locked, the inside door closes and the blinds to the windows also closed, Mr. Nokes entered the room with a lantern through Notes entered the room with a lantern through the transom, and found the lifeless body of Mr. Stewart lying upon a settee, cold and stiff. Dr. Busey, who had been sent for, immediately entered the room, and proceeded forthwith to investigate the cause of the death. No evidences of poison from laudanum were to be found. A bottle of ampagne recently opened was upon the wash-and, and a small quantity in a tumbler, but the sculiar odor of landanum was nowhere to be re Mr. Nokes took from his coat pockets two bot tles of laudanum, containing each two ounces, and box of pills for the destruction of rats and mice One of the bottles was obtained from the store of Mr. Schwartze, the other from Dr. Gardner. Neither had been opened. They were carefully put up and properly labelled. The box was as pur-chased. Not being satisfied, Dr. B. proceeded to investigate more minutely, and found on the edge of the spittoon a small piece of paper, with the letters n i n written upon it, which led him to suppose that strychnine had been taken by the de ceased. The spittoon having been thoroughly cleansed, sixteen small pieces of paper were found, which, when properly adjusted, read as
